Stephanie Larsen is a premier interior designer renowned for her client-centered approach and unwavering dedication to service. With a passion for transforming spaces, Larsen consistently seeks to add value and bring a client's vision to life. Her collaborative spirit is instrumental to her career success. Garnering multiple accolades, this Dynamic Woman was honored with the national Modern Mountain Interior Design award by Modern Luxury in 2024 and back-to-back American Society of Interior Designers design excellence awards.

Reflecting on her business pursuits, Larsen details, "Choosing to invest in myself and my business is the greatest professional risk I've taken in my career." Investing in personal coaching has provided her with mentorship, allowing her to focus more closely on her personal and professional goals that align with her core values.

When describing a Dynamic Woman, she says, "To me, a Dynamic Woman is someone who sets the standard through discipline, excellence and a great attitude."

Looking forward to the future, Larsen explores the overlap of wellness and home design, interweaving her knowledge of the two elements into new residential projects. "I look forward to continuing to work with clients to integrate high-vibrational design elements into their homes, elevating the energy of a space and truly creating projects that look and feel amazing," she says.

An active member of the Sedona Chamber of Commerce, she generously contributes her time and finances to local events like the Sedona International Film Festival. Larsen's commitment to community extends beyond Sedona. Traveling internationally in Morocco, this Dynamic Woman was deeply moved by the devastation caused by an earthquake last year. Larsen has since personally assisted her driver and the hotel manager she met there in rebuilding their homes after the disaster.
